and assumed formality, I could not suppress the tumult within.

Isabel was a little changed, but changed for the better. The haughty belle had become the beautiful Madonna. She was penitent, and—But little was said during the homeward drive except that which was uttered by the talkative old gentleman. Isabel said nothing. What a strange meeting had I been at! entire stranger, as Mr. Haynes supposed me, it could scarcely have been different. She did indeed smile when I lifted her from the buggy, then lisped, "Thank you," than blushed, then paled again. Mr. Hayes cordially invited us to revisit their humble cottage, and solicited the honor of knowing who I was.

"Is it possible!" he exclaimed, "this is my old friend Temple's son? I returned ab. too. They say God grant you may make good use of your money. But we are an old man and make no rash venture. Here, Isabel, daughter! Did you know this gentleman? This is Harry Temple."

You surely have not forgotten him."

"I scarcely recognised him," she replied, somewhat confused, as she returned from the passage, to lead her invalid father into the room. "I hope we shall have the pleasure of seeing you here again, Mr. Temple."

It was the same sweet voice as of old tempered by charity, humility, and affliction; and softened by the influence of religion and filial affection.

I pondered well the circumstances; Should I yield to the yearnings of my heart?—Should I again offer my hand, perhaps to be repulsed? Perhaps she would not, a second time reject my offer. I was now rich, and she poor. It would be no sacrifice of principle or of my power to overtake wealth poor school teacher although I had determined never to renew my suit with the wealthy Misses. It might have been destiny that induced her to reject my offer, for had she done so, I never would have left home and friends to wander in foreign climes in pursuit of wealth. I might at this very day have been groveling in abject poverty—I could have been utterly unable to restore the old man and his daughter to their old scenes, and I now feel bound to do so. Indeed, pride was conquered, and the principles which never had been quite extinguished within me, but against which I had struggled with all my might for eight years at length triumphed.

I visited that cottage repeatedly, and avowed myself that the change in Isabel's character, disposition, and manner, was deep and radical. She no longer held high pretensions—her only thought was the coming of her darling father.

At length I offered her my hand again, and this time I had no scruples about urging my suit, since matters occupied quite a different position from that of former years.

I cannot tell you how happy I was when caused her to my bosom, and knew that was to be mine. If I had loved her in pride, and desired to make her my wife, so much more I loved her now in her humility, when I knew that I could protect her, and restore her and her dear old father to their old home again. I was indeed happy when I saw her shed such copious tears of joy. Ah! I thought I this happiness, is death, both to the donor and to the recipient.

COLDIT WIT.—In Pennsylvania there is a clergyman almost as remarkable for eloquence and eccentricity as Lorenzo Dow himself. On charity occasions his pathos, and sometimes bitter satire, are sure to move both bards and gold coins to the tune than men. On a late occasion he was preaching a temperance sermon, which produced unusual effect on the audience. Among other things, he asserted as a result of his own observation, that a confessedly moderate drinker was sure to become a狂醉者 within five years after he reached that state of indulgence.

He was interrupted here by a man in the audience, who started up in a great excitement, proclaiming himself a moderate drinker of ten years standing, and when the man ceased speaking, called out:

"My friend, stand up here and let me look at you."

The man made an effort to brave the host eyes turned upon him, and stood his ground.

"Nearer, man," cried the minister, beckoning with his long finger. "Hold a light to this brother's face, some of you. Step on the bench and give us a good look."

The moderate drinker was not to be looked down; he not only mounted the bench but allowed a lamp to be held close to his face.

"That will do," said he, drawing back, "I will do my friend; and now I say, if I paid the devil a debt of a hundred drachmas, and paid back him thirty florins, and he'd take you in full payment the next two years, I would never pay him."

THE WIFE.—There is a great deal of truth in the following lines, written by one who unquestionably had experience, and who writes with the truth.

"She needs no guile to break a husband's heart. The absence of content, the muttering of spleen, the untidy dress and cheerless house, the forbidding scowl and deserts—these, and other nameless orgies without a crime among them, have hardened to the quick the heart's core of many a man, and planted there, beyond the reach of the pens of dark despair. O, many a man, before the night arrives, dwelt on the thoughts of other youth and beauty, the dear idea of matrimonial bliss, and kept alive the promises she so kindly gave. And though she may be the innocent, not the injurious one—the forgotten, not the forgetting wife—a happy alliance at the hour of peaceful love—a kindly home to a comfortable home—a smile of welcome all the pain, and the hardest heart ever locked itself within the breast of such a man, will soften to her charms, and her love, as she had hoped, her years of tedious time, toiled, loving, and content the source of comfort, and the spring of the which, why don't you live that half-warmer?" "Bah, Tom, don't you see the animal knew how to wear his own coat?"

Water is the best drink—exercise and air the best medicine.

Murder With Gun.

The following singular circumstance, related in a German journal, is worthy of serving as pendant to that of the Tibbles-dog of Montargis:

A wealthy tanner, named Krantz, residing in the neighborhood of Sins, in the Archduchy of Austria, was in the habit of making journeys several times a year to sell his goods and enter into contracts for supplies of different kinds. These routes generally occupied him about ten days or a fortnight. On the 12th of October last he started, as usual, but on the same night his wife and son were surprised at hearing his cabriolet come up to the door, and their surprise was changed into horror in finding in the vehicle the lifeless body of the tanner, wetting in his blood. The horse, finding himself at liberty, had returned home.

The authorities made inquiries, but without leading to the discovery of the murderer. The tanner had with him a large and powerful dog, but as the animal was fastened under the cabriolet he could not render any assistance to his master. After the death of the tanner, his son, a young man of twenty-five years of age, took on himself the management of the business; and like his father, made the usual journeys. About a fortnight ago, in passing near a roadside public house, at the door of which the landlord was sitting smoking his pipe, the same dog which had been in the habit of accompanying the father, and which was running along quietly by the side of the vehicle, began to bark in the most curious manner and rushed towards the house. The man, seeing its approach, ran in and closed the door, while the dog kept howling and barking most violently. A suspicion immediately entered the mind of the young man, but instead of showing what he felt by any movement which might have been observed by the inmates of the house, he fastened the dog beneath the cabriolet, and driving to the nearest town, gave information to the authorities. Some police officers were immediately despatched to the house, and in it were found the empty money-bag of the tanner, his watch, and a pocket-book. The landlord and his wife were immediately arrested, and will be tried for the crime. —Galignani.

DOWN IN EGYPT, ILLINOIS.—Deacon Smith one day was called upon to marry an old couple not less than sixty years of age.

The crowd assembled at the old log school-house together. The deacon and the minister candidate were

"Mr. Jones," said the deacon, "and Sarah Long, stand up. Do you, Mr. Jones, take Sarah Long, whom you hold by the right hand, to be your lawful and wedded wife so long as you both shall live?"

"No sir, Deacon Smith," said Jones; so long as we both shall agree."

This matter being understood the deacon pronounced:

"Do you, Sarah Long, take Mr. Jones, whom you hold by the right hand, to be your lawful wedded husband so long as you both shall live?"

"No, sir, Deacon Smith; so long as Mr. Jones shall vote the Democratic ticket," replied the patriotic female.

The happy couple were joined together, and went on their way rejoicing.

A MAN WHO HAD RECENTLY BEEN ELECTED A MEMBER OF THE MILITIA, AND WHO WAS NOT OVERBURDENED WITH BRAINS, TOOK IT INTO HIS HEAD, ON THE MORNING OF PARADE, TO EXERCISE A LITTLE BY HIMSELF. THE FIELD SELECTED FOR THE

PURPOSE WAS HIS OWN APARTMENT. PLACING HIMSELF IN A MILITARY ATTITUDE, WITH HIS SWORD DRAWN, HE EXCLAIMED:

"I am a soldier, I am a soldier, I am a soldier; march!" and he tumbled down into the cellar. His wife, hearing the racket, came running in, saying:

"My dear, have you killed yourself?"

"Go about your business, woman," said the hero, "what do you know about war?"

KATE L. E., writing on the subject of kissing, says: "I am vain enough to pride myself on being a girl of sense, and dearly love and appreciate good kissing; indeed, I should soon have a nice sweet kiss as a curmudgeon. It is to me one of life's sweetest enjoyments, some of my happiest moments have been spent in kissing. A rich, heavy kiss, from plump, rosy, moustached—or un-moustached—lips, will last one day. Miss Kate is evidently a young lady of good taste and sense."

A WORTHY SCOTCH COUPLE, WHEN ASKED HOW THEIR SON HAD BROKEN DOWN SO EARLY IN LIFE, GAVE THE FOLLOWING EXPLANATION:—"When we began life together we worked hard and lived upon porridge, and such like gradually adding to our comforts as our means improved, until we were able at length to dine off a bit of roast meat, and sometimes a boiled chick-pea."

FOR JACK, OUR SON, HE WORKED BACKWARD, AND FORGE WITH THE CHICKPEA FIRST."

"WHAT ARE YOU WRITING THERE, MY BOY?" ASKED A FOND PARENT THE OTHER DAY OF HIS HOPEFUL SON, A SHAVEN TEN YEARS OLD.

"MY COMPOSITION, THIS."

"WHAT IS THE SUBJECT?"

INTERNATIONAL LAW, THIR' REPLIED THE YOUNG GRETINUS. "BUT, REALLY, I SHALL BE UNABLE TO CONTEST YOUR IDEA; AND GIVE THEM RELATION, IF I AM CONSTANTLY INTERRUPTED IN THIS MANNER BY IRRELEVANT INQUIRIES."

"MOTHER," SAID HE, "DOES THE LORD SEE EVERYTHING?"

"YES, MY SON."

SEEING A SAILOR HEAVILY ARMED, A

WAGGISH FELLOW REMARKED THAT IT WAS AN EX-

CELLENT FOUNDATION FOR A STORY.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—
DANIEL DUGDALE, the leader of the Whigs, and the author of the Anti-Slavery Standard, yesterday, before the Senate, gave a speech in which he declared that the Republicans came vanishingly fast to power and bubble, with 100,000,000 dollars in their bank accounts. Douglas, the Democrat, who was not present, said he had no objection to the speech.

It was in vain that the few (among) Republicans essayed to cool this excited nation, to hold road collisions with the Southern people, and to wrench away the slaves. The dainty fingers bared the bright luxuriance of the raven hair. They did not, however, on the memorable night of the passage of the Nebraska Bill, the New York forces, led by the Giant, and was made per force to say out, "Never has so much energy and the honorable Senator from Illinois before me in my life." Therefore, Mr. Weller, the Senator from Missouri, came forth yesterday, all the more grieved and wretched, but he could say with his tongue tied, "Now, by the God of the world, I will play the orator."

This effort of Seward was known to be the culminating point with him, therefore months of labor were bestowed on this speech which was big with his political life. It carried Seward and his fortunes.

Seward's delivery is very defective. His voice is weak, he is stately, stolid, very spare and bloodless, even his three hours' speech brought no flush of face or hands that would indicate any blood in his veins. His complexion is yellow, his hair appears faded rather than silver, his eyes are dead, his skin is yellowish, his features are pale, indicative of age. He often puts his hands in his pockets and lets the foot-piece of his desk, and uses an easily the labored composition. He opened, few points, but very studiously covered old damaged ones. He mentioned Harper's Ferry with marked reluctance, and covered it all over with the sun of Missouri, though he seemed never to have heard of a New England Aid Society or a Sharp rifle. The "irrepressible conflict" occupied him all together. He quoted Giddings' speech as found in the Declaration of Independence.

All men are created equal, and endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights. This, he said, included the negro.

In another part of his speech he charged it as a base Democratic slander to say the Republicans believed in negro equality; but the two conflicting declarations were not far enough apart for Douglas to forget this that before he reached the bar, he placed them alongside. "What right have you to make unequal what God created equal, and to take from them their God-given inalienable rights?" he would ask. But will the speakers speak for themselves? When Seward commenced his speech he spoke at a nice, clean, white handkerchief, which his careful wife had, no doubt, that morning, given him for the occasion. He need is once laid it down, and then put the old red one through the whole course, I have no doubt but Mr. Seward's speech will read much better than it sounded. It ought to.

Douglas rose, and as the distance was not great, it was soon done. The glow of health and animation lit up his countenance, and all unprepared as far as any previous preparation was concerned, and with one of those impulsive, ready rejoinders for which he is so celebrated, "took the vanquished Gothic between the eyes." His manner is active but easy. His style has a touch of the Western untrammeled eloquence. He decapitated this mighty Philistines with his own sword. The beautiful structure which cost Seward so much time, labor and travel, such long journeys across the ocean, over the Alps, around the Pyramids and through the courts of the East, was in one brief hour scattered in fragments at the feet of the little Giant.

Douglas was followed by the polished, accomplished and eloquent Davis. It was like the enchanting strains of the soft guitar in the still night succeeding to the full

Douglas' martial band, that had itself been preceded by the Seward monotonous bag-pipe.

A MODERN HERCULES.—A letter from

New Orleans to the St. Louis Republican relates the following incident:

A GAMBLER KNOWN AS MOUNTAIN JACK, PERFORMED AN EXTRAORDINARY FEAT OF PHYSICAL

STRENGTH ONE NIGHT THIS WEEK, IN THE BAR

ROOM OF THE ST. CHARLES HOTEL, WHERE A

LARGE NUMBER OF THE CARNIVAL RAVELERS HAD

ASSEMBLED. A DRUNKEN FELLOW, DRESSED IN

INDIAN COSTUME, RODE A HORSE INTO THE BAR

ROOM, AND DISMOUNTED TO TAKE A DRINK, AND

WHILE AT THE BAR, ANOTHER DRUNKEN FELLOW

CLIMBED INTO THE SADDLE. MOUNTAIN JACK,

AS HIS NAME INDICATES, IS A GIANT IN SIZE, SIX

WHICH UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF LIQUOR, PERFECTLY WILD, RECKLESS AND UNTEMAMBLE.

A PLAYFUL FANCY WOKE HIM AT THE MOMENT, AND,

STOPPING OVER THE HORSE, HE PLACED HIS RIGHT

ARM AROUND HIS BELLY JUST BEHIND THE

FORE-LEGS, AND LIFTED THE ANKLE OF HIS LEG, IN

ORDER TO RELEASE THE BRACE AND HELPSIDE, WHICH WAS TIGHTLY CLUTCHED TO THE HORSE,

AND WHO CONSIDERED HIMSELF LIKELY TO ESCAPE

WITHOUT BREAKING HORSE. LATER IN THE DAY

JACK GOT TO THROWING TIMBERS PROMPTLY

BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD, BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD,

ABOUT TWENTY JACKS.

A BRAVE TEXAN LADY.—While Cortinas

was at Rio Grande, says the Argus of State Gazette, he called upon the lady of Capt. H. Clay Brown. He informed her that he had orders to kill her husband on sight, but assured her of his intentions not to harm herself or family.

She replied with all the fervor of a Texan woman:

"My husband is a good man, and a good volunteer to help the people of Brownsville.

You may be able to shoot and kill him, but if you do, you will have to go home and tell your folks you did it."

He told her to stay here when he left. It is our home, and I will stay in it while we both are on top of each other."

CELEBRATED FARM SEWING MACHINES.

NEW CITY. - We have orders to ship sewing machines to all parts of the country.
This machine uses fresh needles, as purchased from the store, requiring no re-threading of thread.
It has full, regular, and strong in a square style, making need twice its own operation, without reference to the hand, a feature which we consider a great advantage.
It is much better and cheaper than those you purchase, and it will work as well as any.

Salem Room, under Mechanics Institute, Richmond.

To our Clerks & Messrs. H. M. & Co., - Gents.

Permit us to know how the Grocer & Hardware men are doing. We are very anxious to know what is the most popular for the arms, and plantation sewing which we have had in store about eight months, and their performance has far exceeded our most sanguine expectations. We have not managed to sell a single one, at a high price, and we find them to require but little repair, and that seem not to be worth at all. We have tried both the Grocer and Hardware men, chance, and the latter have been the only machine for our work.

John J. Sturtevant.

HOWARD, FETZER, DAVIS,
HARVEY, & CO.,
Manufacturers of Sewing Machines.

Our exhibition for a few days past in Stamford at Mrs. Weston's grand

Establishment, set it to do the West Office, also at the American Hotel.

I WOULD respectfully invite the citizens of Stamford and vicinity to witness the operation of our celebrated Farm Sewing Machine.

A lady from the principal office will be present in exhibiting the Machine and will take pleasure in instructing any lady who may desire it, in the use of charge.

The complete buying will do well to all themselves of this opportunity of learning the use of this most necessary and invaluable household implement from experienced operators.

In offering this machine to the public I can, with the greatest confidence, assure them it is a great improvement.

For all the reasons above mentioned, we are now offering a full line of Sewing Machines.

Every kind of Clothing, Dress, making, etc.

For confirmation of this opinion I refer to the names of the various Manufacturers of Sewing Machines, who have given us the most favorable notices of the price and quality of the machines now in use, more than half which have been sold since the reduction in price on the part of the manufacturer.

Every Machine is now given a full guarantee for two years.
