The News.

March 6, 1861.

In the Louisiana State Convention a Monday resolution was passed to wait to-day in a public reception to General Twiggs, late commander of the Department of Texas under the government of the United States, and inviting him to meet on the floor of the Convention.

It appears, according to our advice from the National Capital, that Lord Lyons, the British Minister, had notified the Government at Washington that this Government will not recognize merely a proclamation of the blockade of the Southern ports on the part of Mr. Lincoln's administration, but that a blockade, to be considered such, must be effectual.

We learn from Washington that drafts sent by the Government to the customhouse at New Orleans have been returned unpaid.

The President sent the appointment of his Cabinet officers to the Senate yesterday. All were confirmed.

In the Virginia Convention yesterday more resolutions were introduced and referred. One of the series offered proposed that an ordinance be reported contemplating the resuming by the State of Virginia all powers delegated by her to the Federal Government, and the calling of a convention of the border slave States for the purpose of forming a new confederacy with such of the free States as shall desire to join the movement.

On Sunday, Mr. Gleason, the Commissioner from Georgia, addressed the Missouri State Convention at St. Louis. While he was speaking, he suffered great indignities from persons occupying the lobby.

A despatch from New Orleans informs us that the revenue officer Dodge has been seized by the Texas authorities. Troops are concentrating in the neighborhood of Fort Brown and the commander was preparing for an attack. Fort Cooper has been surrendered to the State authorities.

MARCH 7, 1861.

In the Senate yesterday a motion was made to print the usual number of copies of the inaugural address of the President. Mr. Chigam said that though voting for the printing of the address, he could not endorse its sentiments, and believed it was carried out in a way inevitably lead to war.

Mr. Douglas considered the inaugural eminently peaceful. He had examined it critically, and could not find anything of a hostile or warlike nature. He believed that the Administration would be marked by its conservatism and peacefulness.

Numerous despatches from various portions of the country on the subject of President Lincoln's inaugural indicate the manner in which it has been generally received by the country, and the different lights in which it is viewed by persons of different political predilections.

In the Missouri State Convention on Tuesday resolutions were adopted appointing a committee to wait on the Commissioner from Georgia and inform him that Missouri disavowed from the position taken by his State, and declined to accept the invitation of Georgia to share with her the responsibilities of secession.

The Southern Confederacy Congress was in secret session the most of the day yesterday. It is said the inaugural of President Lincoln is there considered in the light of a declaration of war.

The Texas secession ordinance has been ratified by a majority of over forty thousand. It is reported that Gov. Houston has resigned his position as Executive of the State.

MARCH 9, 1861.

In the Senate yesterday the various committees were announced. A resolution was offered by Mr. Foster, of Connecticut, for the expulsion of Mr. Wigfall, of Texas, but as the Southern Senator was not present no action was had upon it.

Yesterday, in the Virginia Convention, an application of assistance was offered by Mr. Ely and referred to the Committee on Federal Relations. Mr. Brent made a French speech.

Passage of the Railroad Bill—No Tonnage Tax on Pennsylvania Railroads.

On Thursday last the bill to repeal the Tonnage Tax on Pennsylvania Railroads, which was introduced by Mr. Fessenden, and Mr. Jay Railroad, and the Northern Central Railroad, finally passed the Senate of Pennsylvania by the following vote: Yeas—Messrs. Bennett, Blood, Connel, Finney, Gregg, Hall, Imbrie, Landon, McClure, Meredith, Nichols, Parker, Schindler, Smith, Thompson, Wharton, Palmer, Speaker (18).

Yeas—Messrs. Broughter, Hagan, Clymer, Crawford, Fisher, Hamilton, Hiestand, Irish, Ketchum, Lawrence, Mott, Penney, Robinson, Welsh, Yardley (15).

THE SUNDAY AND KRIS RAILROAD. On the same day the bill for the relief of the Sunday and Kris Railroad and to postpone the Mortgage of the State was finally passed in the Senate by the following vote:

Yeas—Messrs. Bennett, Blood, Bond, Connel, Finney, Fallor, Gregg, Hill, Hamilton, Hiestand, Imbrie, Landon, Lawrence, McClure, Meredith, Nichols, Parker, Robinson, Schindler, Smith, Serrill, Thompson, Wharton, Yardley, Palmer, Speaker (25).

Nays—Messrs. Broughter, Crawford, Clymer, Irish, Ketchum, Mott, Penney, Welsh (8).

Several private bills were passed. The Kansas Relief bill, from the House was passed. The House bill, from the Senate, appropriating $1000 to pay the Pennsylvania members of the Peace Commission, was passed by yeas 61, nays 15.

The resolution from the Senate to adjourn to-day (the 12th of March) was passed. The bill for the relief of Kansas appropriates $30,000.

A bill is now before the Legislature, requiring bank officers, whenever a counterfeit bank note is presented to them, to brand the bill so offered, with the word "counterfeit," by means of a stamp to be kept for that special purpose.

We notice that the bill for the suppression of fortune-telling haunts, has already passed the House of Representatives, and will doubtless soon become a law to full force and virtue.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.—(OF WHOM COMPOSED)—The occupations of the members of the House of Representatives at Harrisburg, are as follows: 31 Farmers, 14 Merchants, 1 Railroad Contractor, 7 Physicians, 13 Lawyers, 1 Hunter, 2 Iron Manufacturers, 1 Musician, 2 Editors and Printers, 2 Coachmakers, 1 Architect, 1 Clerk, 1 Manufacturer, 1 Horticulturist, 1 Coal Merchant, 1 Carpenter, 2 Powder Manufacturers, 2 Gunners, 1 Engineer, 1 Cooper, 1 Carpenter, 1 Tin Smith, 2 Wheelwrights, 1 Gentleman, 1 Agricultural Implement Manufacturer, 1 Moulder, 1 Victualler.

Of these 67 are natives of Pennsylvania, 2 of Massachusetts, 1 of Ohio, 2 of Connecticut, 1 of Maryland, 5 of New York, 1 of Virginia, 2 of New Jersey, 4 of Ireland, 1 of England, 1 of Wales, and 1 of Germany.

The Capitalization of Gaeta.

SCENES AT THE CLOSE OF THE SIEGE. Correspondence of the Paris Press.

CHATELLEONE, Thursday, Feb. 7, 1861. Already the other day a powder magazine burst at the south extremity of the Philippstadt Battery, causing considerable loss to the enemy, but I have now to record a far more terrible explosion—Yesterday, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon a shell from the Piedmontese line on the right penetrated into one of the powder magazines, which blew up and set fire to the great reserve store of projectiles, which blew up likewise.

The explosion was so terrible that the report was re-echoed from the most distant valleys for a long time. A French vessel, although six miles from Gaeta, felt the shock. I had left the village about 4 o'clock to take a stroll through the mountains leading to Castello Onorato, when, reaching the summit of a small hill which commands a view of the gulf and the whole neighborhood, I was almost thrown to the ground by the effect of the explosion which had just taken place to my left. I turned my gaze towards Gaeta, and was horrified at the immense masses of ruin, some pieces high in the air, amidst a black smoke and tongues of flame which lighted up the spires of the town. It was horrible, and reminded me of Pliny's younger's description of an eruption of Mount Vesuvius in a letter to Tacitus, narrating the destruction of Herculaneum and Pompeii. I hastily descended into the valley, and on reaching Castellone I was informed that the explosion had not only caused the death of some hundred Neapolitan soldiers, but that also a considerable number of living beings were still under the ruin.

During the stillness of the night we could discern the stifled cries of those unfortunate men, as General Cialdini had humanely ordered all firing to cease. A Neapolitan messenger arrived requesting an armistice of forty-eight hours. He asked for it in the name of humanity, for he said, it was impossible to ascertain the number of victims buried in the ruins by the explosion. You will easily agree with me that such reason of interest might have induced Cialdini to refuse the request of the military Governor of Gaeta. For a bold and daring General like Cialdini, it was an admirable opportunity to attempt a coup de main, which probably would have succeeded. Not listening to the voice of interest, the Piedmontese General did not hesitate for a moment to grant a suspension of hostilities on the sole condition that the besieged should not work at repairing the breach made recently by the Piedmontese. We shall thus have an armistice, which will certainly to-morrow bring us to the same point as we were at yesterday.

An insurrection among the slaves of Anasia county has been detected and suppressed in its incipient stage. Some mercenary men having put into the heads of those wretches that on the fourth of March there would be a great battle here at Richmond between their masters and the Abolitionists, and their Lincoln would immediately come to deliver them and hand over the country into their hands. On this belief they indulged in some foul speeches and bloody talk—some fellow saying for example that he intended to go to Caroline, out of the head of his master who stood there, and would then bring back his young mistress to live with him for his wife. These things going to the ears of the citizens, a number of them assembled in front of the jail, and would have summarily executed the wretches (who had been placed there) but for the interference in our opinion of the Judge, of Mr. Lewis E. Harris. That gentleman, we fear, was thus moved by very false news—Richardson.

After Mass we have in their case no less energetic strong enough to show a train of thought.

CHATELLEONE, Thursday, Feb. 7, 1861. Already the other day a powder magazine burst at the south extremity of the Philippstadt Battery, causing considerable loss to the enemy, but I have now to record a far more terrible explosion—Yesterday, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon a shell from the Piedmontese line on the right penetrated into one of the powder magazines, which blew up and set fire to the great reserve store of projectiles, which blew up likewise.

The explosion was so terrible that the report was re-echoed from the most distant valleys for a long time. A French vessel, although six miles from Gaeta, felt the shock. I had left the village about 4 o'clock to take a stroll through the mountains leading to Castello Onorato, when, reaching the summit of a small hill which commands a view of the gulf and the whole neighborhood, I was almost thrown to the ground by the effect of the explosion which had just taken place to my left. I turned my gaze towards Gaeta, and was horrified at the immense masses of ruin, some pieces high in the air, amidst a black smoke and tongues of flame which lighted up the spires of the town. It was horrible, and reminded me of Pliny's younger's description of an eruption of Mount Vesuvius in a letter to Tacitus, narrating the destruction of Herculaneum and Pompeii. I hastily descended into the valley, and on reaching Castellone I was informed that the explosion had not only caused the death of some hundred Neapolitan soldiers, but that also a considerable number of living beings were still under the ruin.

During the stillness of the night we could discern the stifled cries of those unfortunate men, as General Cialdini had humanely ordered all firing to cease. A Neapolitan messenger arrived requesting an armistice of forty-eight hours. He asked for it in the name of humanity, for he said, it was impossible to ascertain the number of victims buried in the ruins by the explosion. You will easily agree with me that such reason of interest might have induced Cialdini to refuse the request of the military Governor of Gaeta. For a bold and daring General like Cialdini, it was an admirable opportunity to attempt a coup de main, which probably would have succeeded. Not listening to the voice of interest, the Piedmontese General did not hesitate for a moment to grant a suspension of hostilities on the sole condition that the besieged should not work at repairing the breach made recently by the Piedmontese. We shall thus have an armistice, which will certainly to-morrow bring us to the same point as we were at yesterday.

An insurrection among the slaves of Anasia county has been detected and suppressed in its incipient stage. Some mercenary men having put into the heads of those wretches that on the fourth of March there would be a great battle here at Richmond between their masters and the Abolitionists, and their Lincoln would immediately come to deliver them and hand over the country into their hands. On this belief they indulged in some foul speeches and bloody talk—some fellow saying for example that he intended to go to Caroline, out of the head of his master who stood there, and would then bring back his young mistress to live with him for his wife. These things going to the ears of the citizens, a number of them assembled in front of the jail, and would have summarily executed the wretches (who had been placed there) but for the interference in our opinion of the Judge, of Mr. Lewis E. Harris. That gentleman, we fear, was thus moved by very false news—Richardson.

After Mass we have in their case no less energetic strong enough to show a train of thought.
